- Explores the unique features of Scandinavian design by examining some award-winning Nordic houses and their interiors

Given its unique focus on organically integrating people with nature using sustainable techniques, Scandinavian design currently occupies an important position in the architectural and interior design worlds. The Nordic Home captures this exciting trend by showcasing 45 case studies exemplifying the best of Nordic architecture and interiors.

John Arne Bjerknes is a partner and design director at Nordic - Office of Architecture. He has extensive experience within design, development, and planning of small and large-scale construction projects within a variety of sectors. He is engaged as a diploma examiner, lecturer at the Department of Architecture at the Norwegian University of Science and Technology, and is a frequent speaker for the National Association of Norwegian Architects Architectural Academy and SINTEF's post-graduation programs.
